Excerpt from Brown Alumni Monthly, Vol. 66: February, 1966 Would he concern himself with all areas of the University program? Yes, though administrative delegation was inevitable and desirable. Dean Heffner thought President Wriston and President Keeney had set a good pattern on administrative responsibility. The President-elect said, in answer to a final question, that he hoped to visit Providence before July when he moves East for good. There is a great deal to learn, in too short a time. He would have to schedule such visits with care, for Indiana University was entitled to his best efforts during the transition period. Dr. Keeney was still President Of Brown University until June, but Dean Heffner hoped to prepare himself further for his new challenge in the interval. Dean Heffner made friends during his hour with the press. His sincerity and ability were apparent as he expressed him self thoughtfully, articulately. There s nothing phony about him, said one reporter later. His modesty doesn t keep him from giving an impression of confidence and competence, said another.
