Excerpt from Philosophical and Political History of the Settlements and Trade of the Europeans in the East and West Indies, Vol. 4: Translated From the French of the Abbe Raynal The conquest of those immense regions, which are watered by one of the largest and richest rivers of the universe, was resolved upon; and the island of Trinidad, situated at the mouth of the Oronoko, was people, in order to insure and facilitate the execution of so great an enterprise. An island has always the advantage of a continent, when, having but a small extent of country to defend, it has a very large one to attack; as was the case in the present instance. The river Oronoko, which, as is commonly believed, springs from the Cordeleras, after being increased in a course of five hundred and seventy-five leagues by the influx of a great number of rivers of different magnitude, empties itself into the ocean by more than fifty channels. Its impetuosity is so great, that it stems the most powerful tides, and preserves the freshness of its waters to...
